Following that, there will be a presentation by Heather Geluk.

During her record-breaking expedition in 2015 to become the second woman to climb Shishapangma and Cho Oyu, two of the highest mountains in the world, Heather was caught in the devastating magnitude 7.8 earthquake that struck Nepal. Fortunate to have survived, Heather stayed in Nepal and provided humanitarian assistance to those thousands of men, women and children impacted by the earthquake.

A visual, animated and humorous presentation from this inspiring and accomplished adventurer. Her presentation will prompt you to reflect on your own experiences in the hills, the mountains (real and proverbial) that you've climbed and the people met along the way.
